

ABSTRACT

The RF impedance of a metal trace at gigahertz frequencies is reduced by forming the metal trace to have a base region and a number of fingers that extend away from the base region. . When formed to have a number of loops, the metal trace forms an inductor with an increased Q.